WASHAKIE DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION

Special Guests:

Darla Tyler-McSherry

Darla grew up on a Montana farm, and her father took his own life on that same farm at the age of 82. Darla is committed to supporting other rural families and helping them prevent this tragedy in their own community.

Her message: ask in earnest to help prevent suicide in farming.

Indreland Angus

Roger and Becky have spent 44 years in the registered Angus business. Using grazing management and carbon markets they have increased their stocking rate by 30%.

The Indrelands have been featured on the Working Cows and Ranch Investor podcasts, Working Ranch Magazine, and The Furrow.

Camas Country Mill

After a lifetime of growing grain for commodity and export markets, The Hunton family decided it was time for something different. In 2011, they opened a flour mill, the first in the Willamette Valley in 80 years.

They now supply local school districts, commercial bakeries, restaurants, and home bakers throughout the west. Most recently, they have been purchasing Wyoming grown Einkorn and Spelt through the Wyoming First Grains Project.
